FACULTY & ADMINISTRATION

An old man, going a lone highway,
Came at the evening, cold and gray
To a chasm, vast and deep and wide,
through which was flowing a sullen tide,

The old man crossed in the
twilight dim,
That sullen stream had no fears
for him,
But he turned, when he reached the other side,
And built a bridge to span the tide.

"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,

"You are wasting strength in building here

Your journey will end with the ending day;

You never again must pass this way,
You have crossed the chasm, deep and wide

Why build you the bridge at the eventide?"

The builder lifted his old gray head.

"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said,

There followeth after me today
A youth whose feet must pass this way.

This chasm that has been naught
to me,

To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be.

He too, must cross in the
twilight dim;

Good friend, I am building the bridge for him!"

Will Allen Cromgoole

DEDICATION

MR. FREDERICK WALES

A teacher is a person who provides knowledge and insight. Mr. Wales is such a person, one who possesses these qualities and helps others to gain them. He is a quiet man, not overbearing in his dealings with people; yet his voice rings with the authority of his knowledge and insight.

Mr. Wales is a man of varied talents, ranging from architecture to scrimshaw. To all his endeavors he brings an expertise and understanding that has earned him the reputation of "renaissance man" among his peers. He also brings this understanding to his students, and their problems.

It is rare to meet a man as honest as Mr. Wales. He is truthful not only with students and peers, but also with himself. He is his own severest critic, pushing himself to be better all the time. Mr. Wales teaches his students to reach their highest potential in an atmosphere of earned mutual respect.

Finally, he is a kind and sympathetic person. He is always there to guide his students and help them understand not only through his subject, but also through who and what he is.

We, the class of 1976, with respect and pride dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Frederick Wales.

UNDERCLASSMEN

“And you, you will come too, young brother; for the days pass, and never return, and the South still waits for you. Take the Adventure, heed the call, now ere the irrevocable moment passes! 'Tis but a banging of the door behind you, a blithesome step forward, and you are out of the old life and into the new! Then someday, some day long hence, jog home here if you will, when the cup has been drained and the play has been played, and sit down by your quiet river with a store of goodly memories for company. You can easily overtake me on the road, for you are young, and I am aging and go softly. I will linger, and look back; and at last I will surely see you coming, eager and lightheaded, with all the South in your face!

The Adventurer to the Water Rat, The Wind in the Willows.

FRESHMEN

Freshmen class officers: Peter McDonald (Treasurer), Trish DeSisto (Vice-President), Tim Hunt (President), Christina Barrett (Secretary).

Lost in the ozone.

The loneliness of being a freshman.

"Boy, I wish they'd give me a desk!"

The quiet struggle to understand.

School is always easier when you come with a friend.

JUNIORS

Junior class officers: Kathy Fraser (Vice-President), Nico Mitropoulis (President), Margaret Bigwood (Secretary), Jean Gilligan (Treasurer).

"A single 'BEEP' will ruin the image."

Taking a break.

"It's just another day."

"Hey, com'ere . . . I'll make you an offer you can't refuse."

"Beautiful!"

"You guys pose; I'll be nonchalant."

SPORTS

There's a breathless hush in the Close tonight —
Ten to make and the match to win —
A bumping pitch and a blinding light,
An hour to play and last man in.
And it's not for the sake of a ribboned coat,
Or the selfish hope of a season's fame,
But their Captain's hand on their shoulders smote
"Play up! Play up! and play
the game!

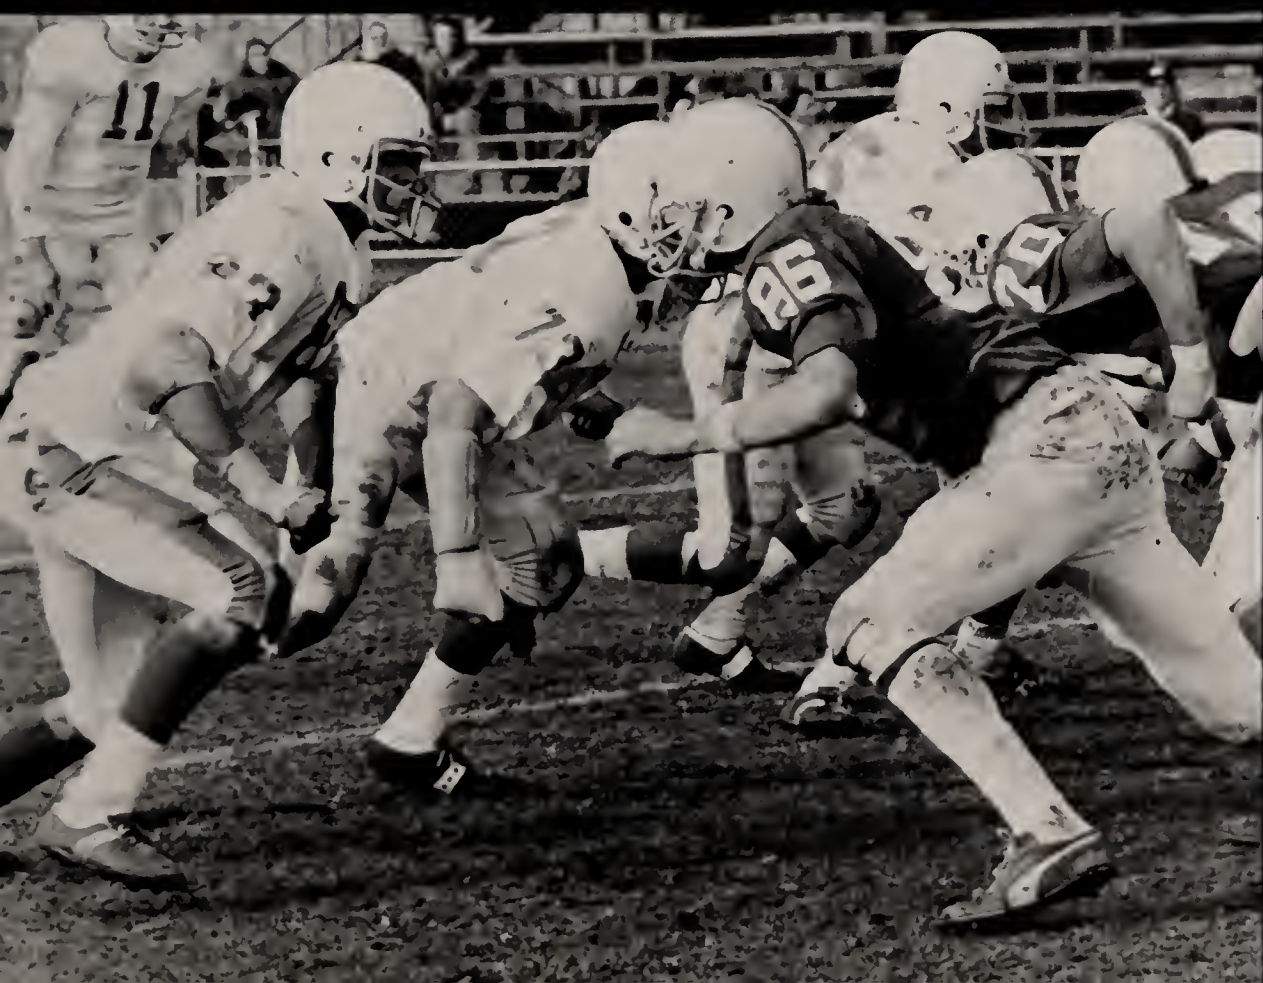

This is the work that year by year
While in her place the school is set
Every one of her young must hear
And none that hears it dare forget
This they all like a joyful mind
Bear through life like a torch
in flame
And falling fling to the host behind —
"Play up! Play up! and play
the game!

Henry Newbolt

"Give me back my racket."

Up, up and away . . . !

Reach . . . a little higher.

SOFTBALL

Take it away, Deb!

"If only my arm was a little longer."

"Watch out 'cause here it comes."

"I'm ready!"

"Come on, I just want to tag you."

Now, despite popular belief, golf is a very exciting sport!

I wonder if Arnie Palmer started out like this?

Sizing up the situation and making a plan of action

"You know of course, our team is ten times better than yours, and you don't stand a chance."

. . . the kid in the blue, fifth hole, to win . . .

ACTIVITIES

Somebody said that it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied,
That "maybe it couldn't", but he would be one,
Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried.

So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried, he hid it.

He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed; "Oh, you'll never do that,
At least no one ever has done it."

But he took off his coat and he took off his hat
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it.

With a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting or quiddit,
He started to sing as he tackled
the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to
prophecy failure;
There are thousands to point out
to you, one by one,
The dangers that wait to assail you.

But just buckle in with a bit of a grin
Just take off your coat
and go to it;
Just start to sing
as you tackle the thing
That "cannot be done",
and you'll do it."

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE

Suzanne "Sanne" Herrmann
AFS 1975-1976
Germany to the U.S.

Linda Hamel
AFS 1975
Sweden

If I should sum up my AFS year in Reading in one sentence, I would just say: It was great, terrific, it was my most wonderful experience! My family, my friends, the people I met at other meetings, the great involvement with AFS . . . getting conscious of my own qualities.

Everything started so strangely. I filled out an application for an AFS year abroad, and after some weeks I got invited to other meetings, and finally I got accepted. I waited until May, when I got my family, the Biette's . .

And then I came to a different country, the language of which I had learned in school, but still couldn't understand too well at first with all the slang you people always use! And then the people . . . I had to find my friends — and did we have fun!

My family was so new to me, and I learned to love them as real parents and brothers and sister. The culture . . . I tried to make it my own as soon as possible. The school gave me so many possibilities to meet everyone, with all the clubs, skiing in the winter, camping in the warmer seasons, the Drama Club, the senior play, and the AFS Club.

But not only my environment changed. I became much more conscious of my own traits and thought and found out so much about myself and relationships with others. This year made me mature so much!

I cannot believe that my stay in my home for one year went from me so suddenly, but I will go home with real and true impressions about the New England people, and this will never disappear from heart. Inside I will always think of you, and thank everybody who participated in my life here.

Sweden is not very different from America — on the surface. With a few variables, people's lives appear to revolve around much the same activities as those Americans partake in: family life, sports, school, making a living. But the similarities are deceptive; the inner life of the country, the ideas adhered to and values treasured by the Swedes are often remote from ours.

Adjustments to new habits, a new family, language, and location are more easily made than adjustments to people who do not think in the same manner as we do. After a few weeks, the "upp" (up) signs on escalators, a sun that rose at four A.M., and the clomp of wooden shoes on the cobbled streets outside my window ceased to startle me. But the Swedes love for nature and the countryside, strenuous exercise, and frequent silences, and their willingness to practice "social democracy" were harder for me to assimilate.

If I learned anything in my Swedish summer, it was about tolerance — accepting, coexisting with those points of view that are at odds with our own, with as little judgement as possible made about those who disagree with us. Living closely with, and eventually loving, people whose beliefs I could not understand, I came to respect each person's right to live their own truth.

We exist in a divided world; cultural barriers, built higher with every year we age, can never be totally dissolved. We can only reach out to each other, over the walls of nationality and history, with humor and compassion, and a firm belief in the inherent worth of every person's outlook. That is what AFS is all about; peace, not "from the barrel of a gun", but from understanding, and acceptance of that which we cannot change in each other.

SENIORS

To be alive in such an age!
When man, impatient of his cage,
Thrills to the soul's immortal rage
For conquest reaches goal on goal,
Travels the earth from pole to pole,
Garners the tempests and the tides
And on a Dream Triumphant rides.
Then, hid within the lump of clay,
A light more terrible than day
Proclaims the presence of that Force
Which hurls the planets on their course.

A challenge to the very sky,
Where endless realms of conquest lie!
When, earth on tiptoe, strives to hear
The message of a sister sphere,
Yearning to reach the cosmic wires
That flash Infinity's desires.

When Progress rides her chariots high
And on the borders of the sky
The signals of the century Proclaim the things that are to be
The rise of woman to her place,
The coming of a nobler race.

Fling forth thy sorrows to the wind
And link thy hope with humankind —
The passion of a larger claim
Will put thy puny grief to shame.
Breathe the world thought, do the world deed,
Think hugely of thy brother's need.
Give thanks with all thy flaming heart —
Crave but to have it in a part.
Give thanks and clasp thy heritage —
To be alive in such an age!

OUR ADVISOR . . .

Faculty members who take part in student activities outside of the classroom have the choice of performing their duties mechanically and without joy, or of extending themselves and taking the great risk of caring. Mr. Swanson chose the latter route, which led to a total involvement with our class that was far more generous than the title of a "advisor" implies.

Raising group spirit and a feeling of cooperation among the members of the privacy-oriented class of '76 was not an easy job, but Mr. Swanson never gave up on us. Gesturing emphatically, communicating his enthusiasm with the hoarse, forceful voice that left few unaffected, he prodded and encouraged, urging and chastising many of us into a giving of ourselves that we never thought we were capable of.

Mr. Swanson seems not to have lost that enchanting ability to believe — to enjoy — to infect others with the sincerity of his feelings and ideas. A man free from pettiness, he displays a rare set of values which places people above things, in a world in which adults are often expected to feel otherwise.

Through faithful attendance at meetings and class activities, Mr. Swanson came into working contact with a good number of the members of our class; it can only be hoped that we absorbed some of the vibrant intensity, humor, and ability to share that are so much a part of this man to whom we offer our thanks.

*Published by
C. Nichols and J. P. Nichol
Reading, 1894*

Out of the past these men speak to us. Their world is not ours. They stood face to face with nature within a circle of comparatively limited dependancies. We jostle and crowd one another in fierce competition. They severed the ties that bound them to the motherland. We are held together by bands of steel in an organism whose vital fluid is electricity. Their life was simple; ours, complex.

Today we stand on the threshold of a new world. It ever opens before us. A world in which there shall be perfect freedom for the individual, spiritual and intellectual, industrial and civil, without limit of sex, or race, or material condition, — a freedom consciously subordinate to the general good.

The voices from a long way off are harmonizing with ours. Out of the silence of years they sound, stilling for the moment the hum of traffic . . . bidding us be true to the ideals possible to be realized in the future, that, remembering the things that are past, we may press on to the things that are before.

— from an address made by Horace G. Wadlim on Reading's celebration of her 250th anniversary, in 1894

READING — 1976

The Reading Common with the Old South Methodist Church in the background. 1975.

Some people choose to say that man is an entity unto himself, being created by, and needing, none other than himself. Is any man so free and independent? For myself, a great many things have had a bearing on what I think and do.

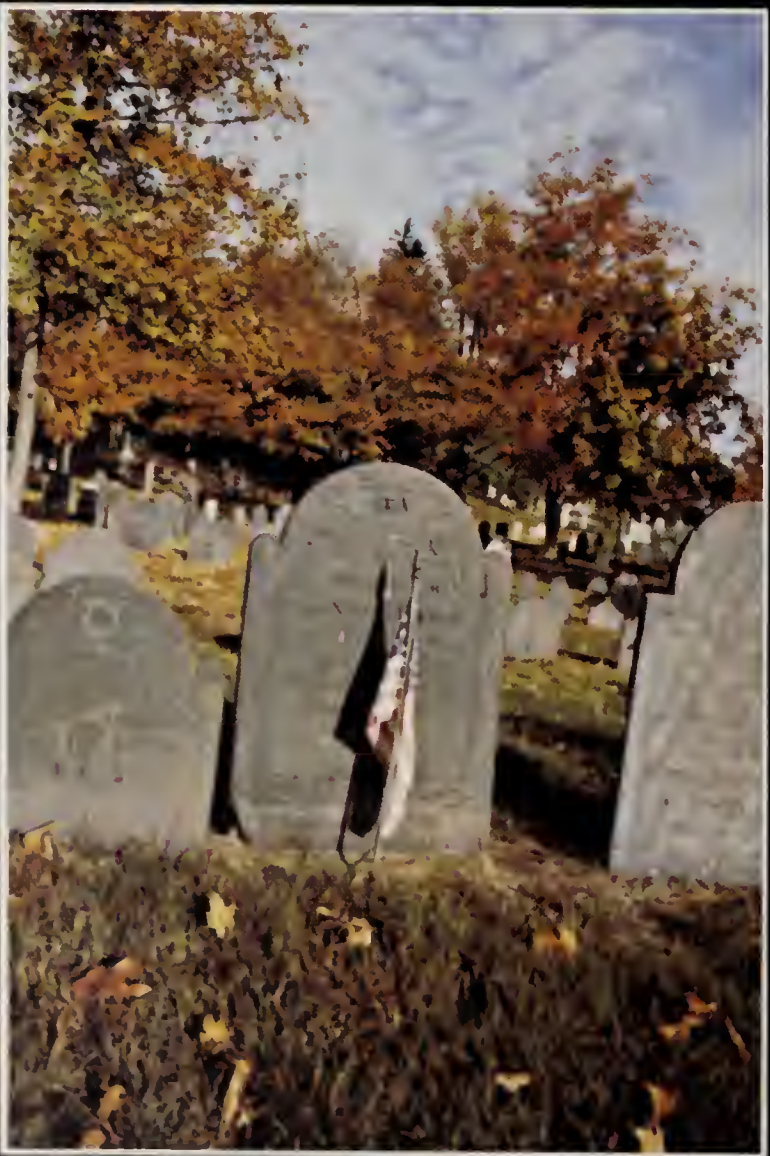

Yes, Reading has had a great deal to do with the being I am, and will become. How could it be otherwise; it is entwined with my years, an integral part of my immediate surroundings, as are family and friends.

Reading is my surroundings. One can't, and shouldn't aspire to close off and alienate that in which he is doing such a thing as living. I have taken on the town's mannerisms, feelings, and peoples as part of my own identity; it has become a friend with whom I can sit back and look at objectively and see its bad points, yet feel a sense of love and loyalty; I am indeed a Readingite.

Sure, I dream of growing up and moving away, I think most of us do. But I will always carry a little of what Reading was inside me, a place to go back to when I want the stability that only a sense of roots can bring. Reading will always be there geographically; and either to my advantage or disadvantage, be there in my heart.

— by a Reading High School Student on the celebration of America's 200th anniversary, in 1976

" . . . Now, four years later, as a magically transfigured butterfly in a cocoon, I am a Senior ready to try and fly into the world. A little less naive, a bit more mature and no longer shy; I have started to grow up."

Marc Restuccia

None of us escaped the maturation earned through our relations with other people. High school forced us into contact with all manner of human beings, not all of whom we would have chosen to be with. We encountered others in classrooms, the library, the back parking lot, the hallway, the athletic field. We came to know them in polite conversations, in informal discussions, in the traditional student-teacher relationship, and the more intimate one of friendship.

Out of our experiences with others grew personal convictions about how we should treat other people — how we should choreograph our steps so that our need for others, and our need for a certain separation, might be fulfilled.

"Every time I turn around I seem to make a new friend."

Gayle Gilbert

"But what effect did his high school years have on him? The purpose of the world and man's existence didn't seem so incomprehensible to him. But most importantly, he learned how to deal effectively with other people."

Brian Jack

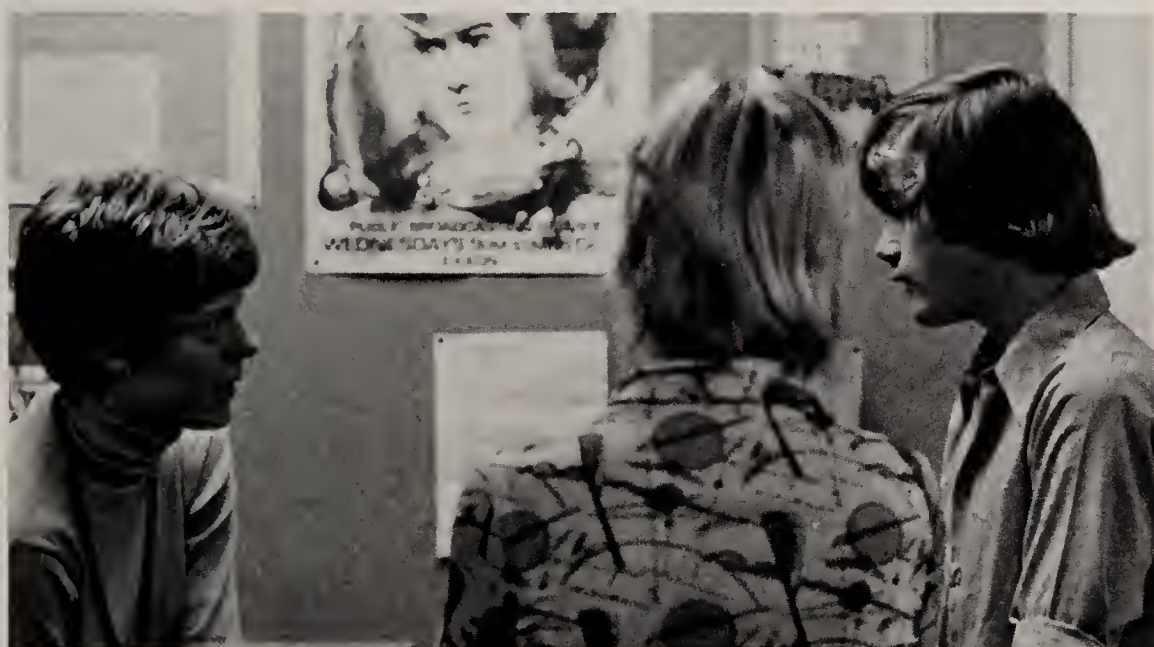

"The cynics in my life
Who, with reason, find fault
In my existence
Can never really know what meaningful lessons
They have taught me.
Humility is perhaps the most valued,
Painful experience.
They made me most of what I am
But they cannot break me
From the person that I was, and always will be.
I am as confused as they,
And yet there can be some purpose
In confusion."

Judy Gomes

"Personal and social changes are caused by people. The constant contact with friends, enemies, fellow students and teachers is a strong influence. Whether beneficial or harmful, the influence is evident."

Lisa Bamberg

"For the friends I've made, and things I've learned; I am grateful to the people who helped me find some answers. They know who they are. To the people who have shown bias, hatred and injustice, I have learned to ignore you when possible, and fight you when necessary."

Lisa Russell

One of the most important events in our high school experience was the growth of our minds. Science, English, languages, business, carpentry, printing, music; doors to these and other worlds were flung open to us, and we explored.

From the skills and knowledge we acquired, we developed a view of the larger world around us, each individual unconsciously or consciously forming in his mind some view, however vague, of the universe and his place in it.

"My learning experiences have been many. Sometimes things have not gone my way and I learn from these experiences too. High school has been exciting, shocking, boring, frightening, and disappointing and although I would not go through it again . . . I am content because I have grown from it all."

Laurie Dillon

"Each has his own chair, whether wooden or gilt or upholstered. These chairs can not be placed in the same room, for the existence of some preclude the existence of others."

Joan Feeney

"Although there is a place in the world for everyone, no one can expect everything to be just as he wants it to be. It would be ridiculous, though, to expect everyone to be happy with his position. Once you can accept what and who you are, then you can be happy."

Fred Messeck

"Perhaps most of all, my high school years awakened me to the real world. I am no longer hiding behind a wall. It was from this institution that I gained an understanding about myself and others."

Carole Palmunen

"I often find myself pondering my former years in a cynical way, searching to find . . . what I really got out, and am getting out of high school."

Nancy Kasperovich

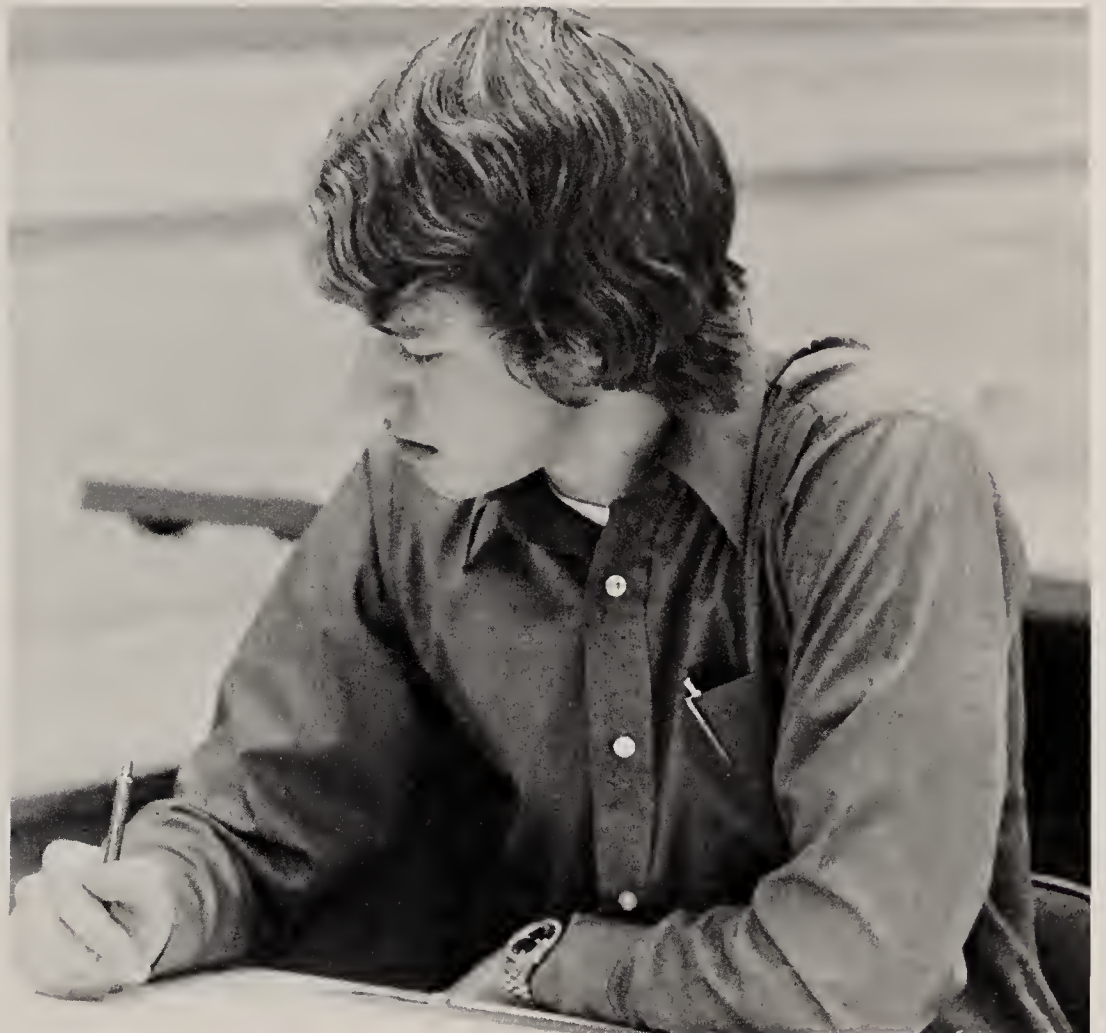

So the barriers of our being, the restricting confines around our personalities, characters, and intellects, were pushed outward, and with them the boundaries of our dreams.

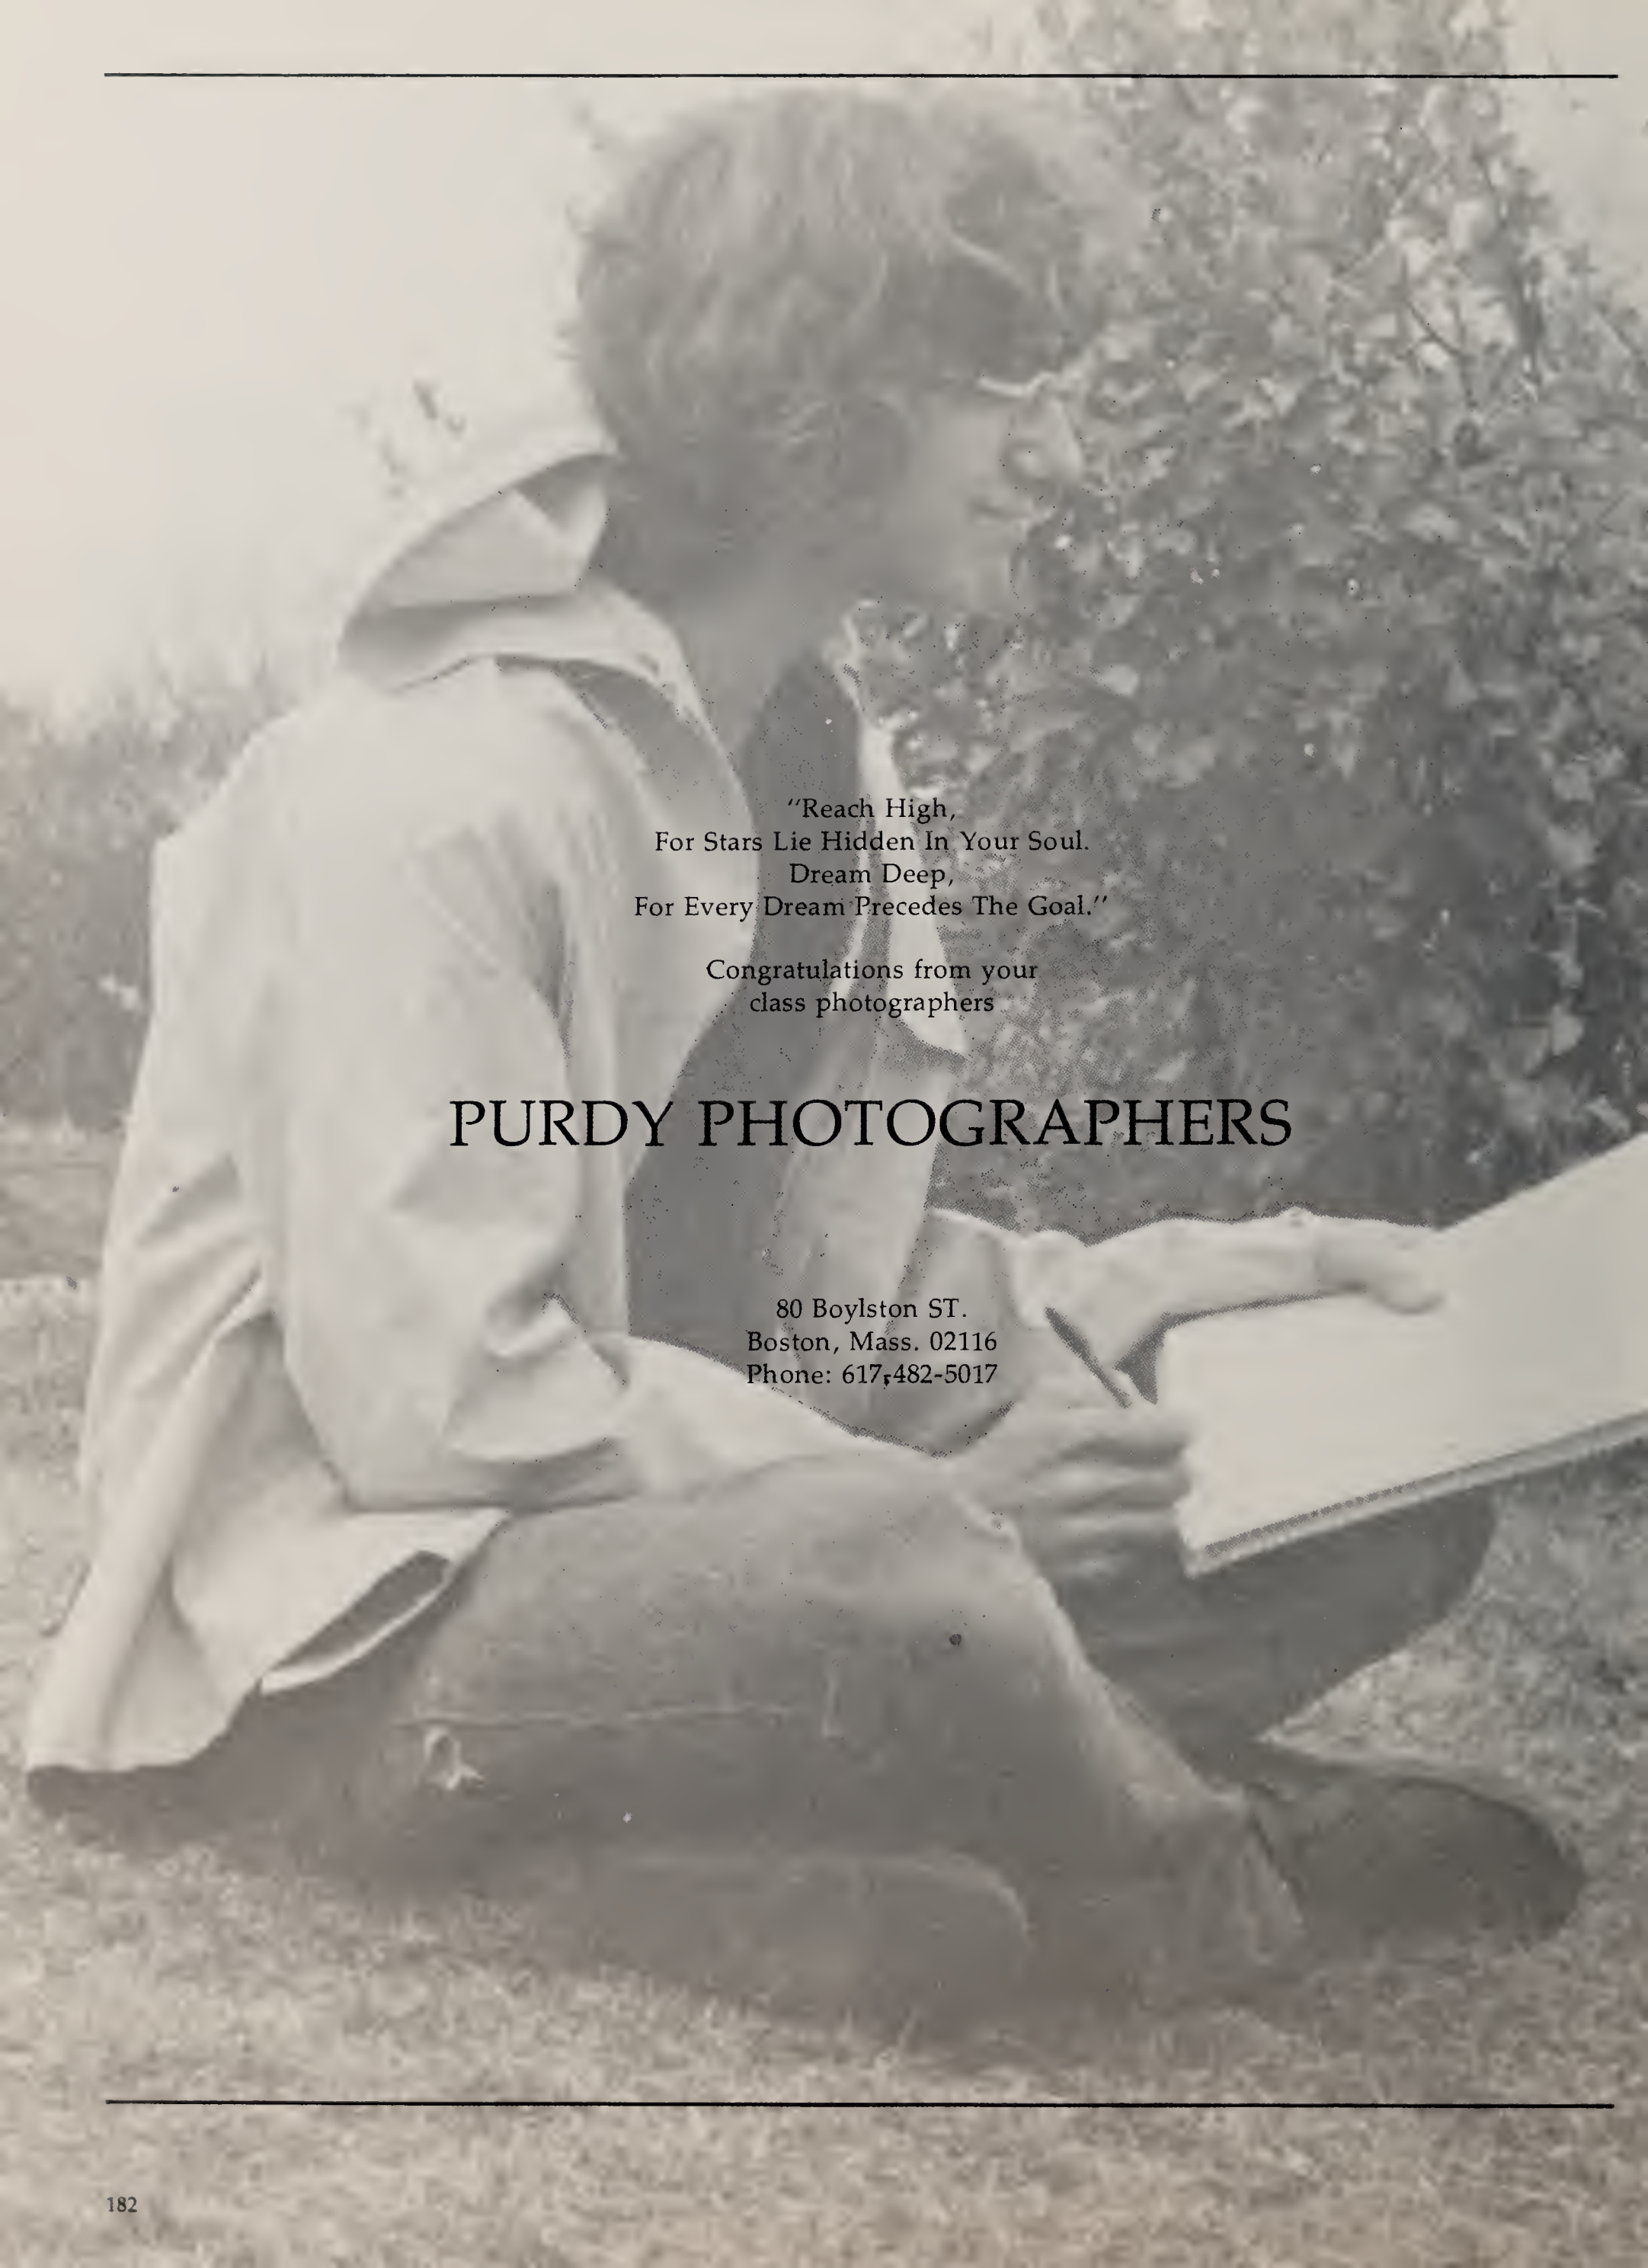

Hopefully, the best of the child and the adolescent remain with us . . .

. . . a deep sense of wonder in the face of our living, curiosity, enthusiasm, hope, and the capacity to grow, up and out, so that the awesome struggle to become a better self continues beyond our time together, into whatever lies ahead.

That's what we're all about.

To us, Peopleprotection is one word, one idea — the one big reason we're in business.

It's everything we do to help business and people avoid financial worry.

It's safety consultation that helps keep a lot of accidents from happening on the job.

It's providing income that keeps a family going when the breadwinner can't.

It's helping people protect their possessions, secure their way of life and dignify their retirement years.

Peopleprotection. That has been our philosophy since 1887.
